This house was built at the corner of US 40 (the National Road and MD 63) prior to the realignment of MD 63 in the early twentieth century. Although the exact date of construction is not known, the house appears on the 1912 USGS map. It is eligible for the National Register of Historic Places under Criteria as it retains enough integrity to convey its significance as an example of a late 19th century domestic structure embodying characteristics of the Queen Anne/Colonial Revival style. It is also eligible for the National Register of Historic Places under Criteria A for its association with Huyett, a crossroads community that developed along the National Pike. Research does not indicate that this house was associated with personages of historical importance on local, state or national level. Originally part of a larger farm owned by the Sprechers, the house sits on a 2.21 acre lot.
